ADDRESS TO MISSOURI VOTERS ADOPTED BY DEMOCRATS AT KANSAS CITY

The text of the address to the voters Missouri, adopted by the Committee address at the Democratic convention Kansas City, January 8, 1910, is as in Kansas City, January 8, 1916, is as follows:

The Tariff—We regard the early and just reformation of our turiff laws as the most urgent and the most important economic question to be dealt with in the immediate future. The Dingley law, passed in 1897, and which remained in force until 1909, prescribes the highest rates of duty on imports ever imposed up to that date by any statute of this or any other industrial nation.

The tax rates imposed by that law were so exorbitant as to substantially exclude the importation of many important lines of manufactures, and in all cases to so burden importations as to make them difficult and often hazardous. Taking quick advantage of the favoring opportunities thus afforded, the great menopolies were organized in most of the more important lines of American manufactures.

The first business of these monopoles manufactures.

The first business of these monopoles was to crush competition, or to so hamper and circumscribe it as to make it inferentive; and, this being accomplished, the next move, under one excuse or another, was gradually to advance the price of their commodities to consumers. After years of experience under the operations of this law, a deep-laid and widespread conviction was forced on the public judgment cannons. Republicans as well as the public of extertion. As a result of the training of extertion, as amphatic, almost peremptory, demand came from every quarter of the Luion for a material reduction in the rates. It was known that the Democratic party, consistently and always opposed to a high protective tariff, would, if given power, make substantial reductions on all the rates, with a view to reaching a revenue basis as speedly as possible, and so the magnates of speedla privilege, with a view to weakening the Democratic position, induced the Republican besses to play a confidence game on the American votera. The Republican party, through the oft-repeated declarations of Judge Taft, its presidential candidate, made during the campaign of 1908, committed itself to a solemn promise that if continued in power that party would thoroughly revise the tariff with a substantial reduction in the rates. The people were deceived and the solemn succeeded. The Republican party did "revise the tariff by the passage of the Payne-Aldrich is, but the tariff with a substantial reduction in the rates. tries, so far from sharing in the supposed benefits of a protective law, are its victims by Reason of the Resultant Higher Cost of Living—The amount of their wages is in no way dependent upon the tariff, but depends on the labor demands and supply, and upon other conditions in nowise related to the tariff, while undoubtedly their living expenses, in common with all, are directly affected by the burdens of the tariff taxation. Mechanics trained as experts in specialties receive in this, as they do in other countries, higher wages of mill operatives, but, as in the case of common laborers, their wages are in no sense dependent on the tariff, but depend mainly upon their organizations, upon skill and upon the demand for and supply of such labor. But this class, like all others, must bear the burden of the increased cost of living resulting from monopolistic control of our productive industries through protective laws. It is a question of extreme doubt whether even the operatives in manufacturing industries are the racipients of any substantial advantage under the economic system now prevailing. The Republican contends that the item of labor constitutes the chief difference in the cost of production here and abroad, and only a few years since the Republican advocacy of high protection was predicated almost whelly on the proposition that the tariff should be high enough to cover the alleged difference in the labor cost as between America and competing foreign countries, thereby, as they contended, equalizing labor conditions and maintaining the American wage standard at home.

But now it is known of all informed men that the tariff rates of the new law maintaining the American wage standard at home.

But now it is known of all informed men that the tariff rates of the new law are far in excess of the difference in labor wage at home and abroad. Who gots the benefit of that? Not the workingmen, for their wages for the most part remain the same, and where wages have been changed in recent months there have been changed in recent months there have been more reductions than increases; who gots the benefit? The manufacturers. Who foots the bill, who suffers? The consumers, including the employes of the manufacturers, who, in common with all, most bear the heavy additional cost of living. America the boasted land of plenty, has become by far the most expensive country of the world in which to live. Already we have reached the

to make their recomes meet their reasonable expenditures and men working in protected industries are not exempt from this depressing condition.

As to the "Protection of the American Farmers"—We affirm that, with rare exceptions, and particularly in respect to the vegetables along the Canadian border, it is impossible that the tariff can directly or materially affect the price of staple farm products raised in all America, it is impossible that the tariff can directly or materially affect the price of staple farm products raised in all America, and the world's food supply and as long as we produce an excess above our home demands for export, protection to the farmer sgalast foreign competition is a snallow pretense and a myth. While we continue to be exporters of food products, the price of our productions will be regulated by the world's supply and demand, which will vary from one period to another without regard to tariff legislation; and if in the future it should happen that the domestic demand should outstrip the domestic supply, then humanity and justice alike would protest against augmenting the price of food necessary for the sustename of the people by artificial means. The American tarmer knows he does not need nome protection against toreign competition, and he knows also that he bears his full share of the burdens protected monopoles impose upon the customer.

This conference is firm in the belief that the struggle for a just downward revision of the tariff should be pushed forward without nait or the least abatement in purpose of energy, unit monopoly shall be unhorsed and full justice done the American people. We regret that the Republican senator from this state turned his back upon the progressive reform element of his party, ignored mis party pieques and his duty to his own state turned his back upon the progressive reform element of his party, ignored his party pieques and his duty to his own constituency, and surrelinered mineral without reason to the mastery of that legislative bossism which, Missouri authorities. Boyer confessed to the crime to Sheriff Parker, saying at the next november election.

Public Extravagance—The enormous and rapid growth in recent years in the volume of public expenditures, national and state, presents a question scarcely iess important than the tariff. Taxation is substantially the only means or raising the public revenue. The public treasury is supported almost wholly by contributions from the people collected by taxatherers. Taxation being a burden imposed on the citizens for the maintenance of government, it follows logically that the old Democratic doctrine that that burden should be made as light as possible, consistent with good government economically administered, is sound. Large expenditures make high taxation necessary, and conversely it follows that the acquisition of a large revenue by excessive taxation leads to extravagance Large expenditures make high taxation necessary, and conversely it follows that the acquisition of a large revenue by excessive taxation leads to extravagance and needless expenditures. Honesty and economy in administrations with the least possible burden of taxation should furnish the true standard of American government. But that has not been the role in recent years, in fact, that is not the rule upon which the Republican party administers government. That party seems possessed with a mania for money spending, and we are living in an era of astounding public xetravagance. For example, the appropriations made for the first two years of Mr. Taft's administration ($2,052,000,000) will exceed the eppropriations for the whole four years of Cleveland's last term ($1,850,000,000) by $192,000,000; and this enormous increase occurs in an average of about 12 years. Assuming that the appropriations for the last two years of Taft's administration will equal those for the first two years (and if the Republicans control the next congress there will be no probability of a decrease), the total expenditures of his administration will aggregate the collossal sum of $4,104,000,000, as against $1,850,000,000 expended during the whole of Cleveland's last term. These vast expenditures have exhausted the enormous revenues extorted from the people by excessive taxation until the current treasury deficit will approximate the summer of the Speaker and the Committee on Rules, of which the Speaker is the chairman. We heartly sympathize with the efforts made by Democratic and progressive Republican representatives to restore the House which is the only governmental forum in which the people have a direct voice, to its old-time prestige and power. We commend to the people have a direct voice, to its old-time prestige and power. We commend to the people have a direct voice, to its old-time prestige and power of the Constitution which has been presting and power of the Constitution which has people the declaration made on this subject by t people the declaration made on this subject by the National Democratic Convention held in Denver, which is as follows:

"The House of Representatives was designed by the fathers of the Constitution to be the popular branch of our government, responsive to the public will. The House of Representatives, as controlled in recent years by the Republican party, has ceased to be a deliberative and legislative body, responsive to the will of a majority of its members, but has come under the absolute domination of the Speaker, who has entire control of its deliberations and power of legislation. We have observed with amazement the popular branch of our federal government helpless to obtain either the consideration or enactment of measures desired by a majority of its members. Legislative government becomes a failure when one member, in the person of the Speaker, is more powerful than the entire body. We demand that the House of Representatives shall again become a deliberative body, controlled by a majority of the people's representatives, and not by the Speaker, and we pledge ourselves to adopt such rules and regulations to govern the House of Representatives as will enable a majority of the members to direct its deliberations and control legislation."

We call attention to the extravagance of the present Republican state administration and the frantic efforts of the Republican governor to increase the burden of taxation upon the people of Missouri, in striking contrast to the forty years of Democratic administration, during which we paid off the heritage of debt left us by Republican officials, built up our splendid state institutions and decreased constantly the rate of taxation for state purposes.

we fully endorse the economic and business-like administration of the present Democratic state officials; and we invite a comparison of their official conduct with that of the partisan and speciacular performances of the Republican chief executive. We call upon all Democrats to renew their party allegiance and putting aside and behind them those differences and dissessions which in the past have weakened our ranks and made, possible the defeat of those principles held in common by all Democrats, to present to the enemy in the coming state and national campaigns an unbroken and unwavering line. And in the conflict to restore and perputuate the supremacy of the principles herein announced, we would welcome the support of all citizens.

90,000 AMERICAN SETTLERS GO TO CANADA

THE YEAR 1909 HAS SHOWN AN INCREASE OF OVER EIGHTY PER CENT IN AMERICAN SETTLEMENT.

Recent advices from Canada, our next door neighbour, the neighbourly country across the boundary line. are that upwards of ninety thousand settlers from the United States went into Western Canada during the past year, most of them for the purpose of taking up and settling upon the vacant lands, 160 acres of which are given free by the government, and lands adjoining held by railway and land companies are selling at from nine to fifteen and twenty dollars per acre. Even if thirty and forty dollars per acre were paid, the price would be low, as the lands produce wonderfully, and at these higher figures there is a large interest on the money and labor invested. The ninety thousand settlers of last year, followed about sixty thousand of the previous year, and for several years the number has been running into these large figures. There must be a reason for it. It may be found in the single phrase, "they are satisfied." Nothing attracts people more than the success of others, and the news of this reaching other thousands, causes them to investigate. The investigation in this case is always satisfactory. The splendid land of Iowa, of Indiana, of Nebraska, Kansas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Ohio and other States has risen to a high value, and it is worth every dollar asked for it. But there is not room now for all on these lands. With the ever increasing demand for grain, there comes the ever increasing demand for land. Canada is the only country on the continent in a position to supply it. Land there that costs, say fifteen dollars an acre, produces on a reasonable calculation, 25 bushels of wheat to the acre, or about $20.00. The most liberal calculation as to cost makes the cost to produce $7.50 per acre, leaving a balance of $12.50 per The $7.50 carries good wages for the farmer, and all other conceivable contingencies. With conditions like this, covering the entire area of about 500,000 square miles, it is readily understood why 90,000 Americans should follow the sixty thousand of the previous year.
